Writing form Reading
Intertextuality

1. On the following photocopy of pages 71 through 75, write your responses as the reader in the margins to phrases, events, sentences, and characters as you read. What do these words bring to mind? Any questions? Connections to people or events you know?
2. Now, make a list of your most inspirational or strongest responses from those you made in the margins.
3. From this list, choose one line from your responses that moves you the most, is most interesting, or just seems easy to write about.
4. Next, write a one page creative essay/story/ or poem using the one line you chose. Let that one line or word or phrase be the subject or inspiration for your own piece of writing.
5. This will be a guided activity and we will do it in class with demonstration.
